

Children

Thursday, 13 March 2008

Last Updated Friday, 28 March 2008

Tamara has thirty-two years of experience photographing children in studio and pre-school settings. Children can sense that Tamara likes them and they become at ease before her lens. Her photographs reflect the innocence of childhood. In addition to large grins and smiling eyes, somber moments and even shyness show children's young personalities. Should a special "introductory" meeting be necessary, Tamara will schedule an appointment with you and your child prior to the photography session.

High Gate Gallery has a collection of vintage clothing, hats, and antique props to create old-time portraits parents adore. Photographed in either black and white or color, these sessions add variety to Tamara's unique style of photography.